BASIC INFORMATION

What is a class action?

In a class action, one or more people called “Representative Plaintiffs” sue on behalf of people who have similar claims. All of the people who have similar claims are called a “Class” or “Class Members.” The court resolves the issues for everyone affected, except for those who excluded themselves from the lawsuit by opting out.

What is this class action about?

This class action alleges that the Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation of Halifax and the Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation of Yarmouth are legally liable for sexual abuse committed by their priests between April 14, 1954 and March 31, 2020.

Why is there a proposed settlement?

By agreeing to the proposed settlement, the Representative Plaintiff, Class Members, and the Defendants avoid the costs and risks of proceeding further with litigation. In particular, if approved by the Court, the proposed settlement agreement will guarantee financial compensation for eligible Class Members.

In this case, the settlement also means that Class Members will NOT be required to testify in court.

The Representative Plaintiff and the lawyers representing the Representative Plaintiff believe that the proposed settlement is in the best interests of all Class Members.

If you opted out of this lawsuit, you are not included in the proposed settlement. The time to opt out of the class action was between June 12, 2020 and October 12, 2020. It is no longer possible to opt out of this lawsuit.¹

How will the lawyers be paid?
